Brian will talk about a tool for paranormal investigation, the MESA. MESA is a data aggregation application that utilizes the factory-installed sensors within smartphones. These include magnetometers (allows EMF data collection); temperature, barometer, light sensors to measure ambient light, etc.

Can Hypnosis Induce an Out-Of-Body-Experience? - Joyce Bok & Dr Alexander De Foe (WA & VIC)

1.15pm – 2.15pm

Joyce and Alex conducted a controlled experiment to see if an Out-Of-Body-Experience (OBEs) can be induced by hypnosis. The research, funded by the AIPR, was titled: The efficacy of hypnOBEs in producing veridical psi experiences: A replication study. The study also aimed to obtain evidence of the OBE by asking the participants to identify a target. We explored the questions: Can the hit rates be increased through practice; and are there pre-existing factors which could enhance the hit rates? Joyce and Alex will present the quantitative and qualitative findings.

Poltergeist- The Night Side of Physics – Keith Linder (USA- Seattle)

3.50pm – 4.50pm

Poltergeist - The Night Side of Physics is a close-up theoretical and scientific analysis of the activity that took place in the Bothell house, located in a suburb outside of Seattle, Washington (USA). Spontaneous fires, stone-throwing, teleportation, apport, asporting, strange water puddle appearances, objects levitating, strange sounds - it's all here. How is the poltergeist able to perform these machinations? What's the mechanics behind it? Keith Linder a survivor of the Bothell home will be talking about the activity he and his girlfriend experienced. Asking the question? Can quantum physics explain the machinations and existence of poltergeists? Keith Linder believes poltergeists are a third-party entity. Sentient beings with the ability to tap into areas of quantum physics that humans have yet to explore.
